

Bio for Timothy N. Oettmeier

Tim has begun his 36th year serving the public as a member of the Houston Police Department where he currently serves as an Executive Assistant Chief of Police assigned to Support Operations.

He is responsible for managing and administering the affairs of over 1,800 sworn and civilian personnel assigned to the Information Services Command, the Special Support Services Command, the Tactical Operations Command, the department's Crime Lab, and the department's Technology Services operation.

He has worked in a variety of other significant assignments during his career including: serving as the Director of Training, serving as the city's Inspector General, commanding Patrol Operations, and serving as Acting Chief of Police.

He has served as a Project Director or principle member of several national police research initiatives. He has been a principle consultant in many police management projects throughout the country. He has authored numerous department reports along with articles for textbooks, magazines, and journals on various police management issues.

He received his Ph.D. majoring in Police Administration from Sam Houston State University in 1982.